

Charlie Kwok and The Family Jewels

Charlie Kwok and The Family Jewels is a two part story, approximately 14,500 words. The first story begins at the funeral for Grace, who was killed by her husband Peter. He is haunted by Grace, the unwitting recipient of the stolen goods. Peter must come to terms with his actions, as well as his lifelong obsession as a jewel thief. Their son, Rod, uses the opportunity of his mother death to press his father to give up the house he lives in for a senior living community. Their neighbor Charlie Kwok, a former karate teacher, may have just the solution Peter needs to deal with his problems. The second story takes place years earlier, when a much younger Rod is being bullied by boys at school. He strikes a deal with Charlie Kwok for karate lessons. What Charlie teaches him is just what he needs to solve his problems, but it may be more than Rod bargained for.
