

THE SECRET HOUR (Killing Time Book 1)

Scarlett Reese has always been odd. Deemed a genius, the twenty-three year old with flaming red hair and a sarcastic wit is the youngest forensic pathologist in the country, but that's not what sets her apart. She has an unusual gift. Scarlett can hear people's thoughts. And the dead have a lot to say. Jack Hollister is new on campus. A mid-semester transfer student, Jack is hoping he won't have the same problem at Erie Mission that he had at his last college. Namely, the people around him keep dying. He takes an interest in Scarlett the second he sees her flitting across campus one wintry afternoon. She's different, but he can't pinpoint why. All he knows is that she can help him and he must earn her trust. Time is running out. Jack intrigues her. His thoughts are disordered and mysterious, which for Scarlett comes as a welcomed relief. But when a student drops dead at his feet one night, Scarlett realizes death has been following this good-looking guy, and she thinks she might have a way to catch the killer.
